The ACU is the oldest and most well-established conservative grassroots organization in American. The ACU's donors are exceptionally active in the conservative organization. Many attend the CPAC, the largest conservative conference in the nation with close to 10,000 attendees annually. These are highly motivated, wealthy, active, and loyal members of the conservative movement and they are keenly interested in supporting the interests of their party.

The ACU represents Americans on issues of national importance, like liberty, personal responsibility, traditional values and national security. It also shapes conservative stances on issues that are important to Congress, state and local governments, the media, and candidates for public office.
