The donors to the SSI understand that Americans who paid into Social Security for their whole life are entitled to high quality health care. These generous donors advocate for the ever growing senior population by promoting common-sense reform and smaller government. They believe that the government has no right to tax Social Security benefits, nor should medical care be rationed, as it would be under Obamacare. They firmly oppose the raid on Social Security Trust Funds to pay for other areas of the budget.

The SSI is a seniors' advocacy organization working to promote the retirement security of today's seniors and the seniors of tomorrow. They understand the critical need that these valued members of our society have, and all too often, the government seeks to take advantage of them.
